Reflections for Good Friday

• Kevin Carey

PAPERBACK (224 pages)

ISBN: 978-1-908381-11-8

February 2018 • RRP £12.99

Rights: worldwide, all languages

A collection of thought-provoking reflections inviting us to contemplate the events of Good Friday in new ways.

It is all-too-easy to become so wrapped up in the celebration of Easter Day that the preceding days are forgotten. The reflections are diverse, from Peter's clumsy fear to the Seven Last Words, and are based on a series of addresses given during the two hours at the foot of the cross on Good Friday.

KEVIN CAREY is Chairman of RNIB, the UK's leading blindness charity, and is himself blind. As an undergraduate at Downing College, Cambridge, he was President of the Union and Editor of Varsity. Having spent a year at Harvard running the university radio station's news department, he joined the BBC as a journalist for Radio 4, and was involved in early experiments to broadcast from Parliament.

Carey is in demand internationally as an accessibility and e-inclusion consultant, author and speaker, having worked for Sight Savers International for 15 years and founded the charity humanTY.

Carey was licenced as a Reader in the Church of England in 2004, elected to General Synod in 2005, and completed an MA in Systematic Theology at King's College London in 2007. For ten years he was a classical music critic, and now lives in West Sussex with his wife Margaret.

MISSION FROM

Growing a Kingdom Community

Janet Hodgson

This is an inspiring example of how a seriously deprived community can bring about its own transformation without any fads or initiatives imposed from on high by the church. It is a radical and controversial challenge to the top-down leadership models that are so widespread in the church, instead making the case for a new model of people-driven servant leadership, guided by the Holy Spirit towards kingdom growth rather than church growth.

Using the example of two Loretto Sisters working alongside one of the most socially-deprived communities in North East England, we see how they listened to and empowered people who felt forgotten and had lost hope. As servant leaders, the sisters were gradually able to empower the residents of Port Clarence on the River Tees to confront the many injustices heaped upon them, and to take action in improving their lives.

"A thrilling book. A true and compelling story of mission on the front line. The author has the theological skill to draw out of the story some timely and challenging lessons for the modern church."

MICHAEL TURNBULL, former Bishop of Durham

JANET HODGSON was born in South Africa. She was awarded a PhD in Religious Studies at the University of Cape Town in 1985 and subsequently taught mission, mission history, sociology of religion, and African culture and Christianity. She moved to the UK in 1987 having been granted an Honorary Fellowship in the Centre for the Study of Christianity in the Non-Western World, King's College Edinburgh. At the same time she was a tutor and taught mission in the Selly Oak Colleges, Birmingham for 18 months. She was then appointed Mission Adviser for USPG (now Us.) in the Dioceses of Oxford and St Albans for 5 years. Finally, she was appointed Adviser in Local Mission/Diocesan missionary in the Diocese of Durham from 1994 to the end of 2001, before retiring to South Africa.

The field research for her academic studies took her all over South Africa and Canada, learning about the culture and spirituality of the indigenous peoples. In the UK Janet was well known nationally for her workshops, and has been involved in different aspects of mission all her working life. She has sat on numerous committees, generally as the only woman.

During her 7 years in the North East she lived in Hartlepool but travelled the length and breadth of Durham Diocese and beyond, ministering to the whole range of Church of England traditions in the various parishes.

LIVING PRAYER

At one with God in daily life

• John Davey

PAPERBACK (58 pages)

ISBN: 978-1-910519-61-5

December 2017 • RRP £7.99

Rights: worldwide, all languages

Prayer can seem like a formidable challenge. Even if we find the time to pray in our busy lives, knowing what to say, or how to say it, can be daunting, and even make us feel inadequate before God. In this concise book, John Davey introduces prayer not with abstract theory but with actual prayers and scripture that can be used everyday.

This gentle introduction to praying starts with the Lord's Prayer before guiding the reader through the first steps of prayer, and building on that with a simple structure of morning, evening and night prayer.

This book is a perfect gift for anyone who is new to faith, or struggling with their prayer life. Each chapter builds on the last with baby steps, so that the reader is not overwhelmed.

JOHN DAVEY was born five years before the outbreak of WWII and his earliest memory is of being evacuated from London at the age of four to St Ives, Huntingdonshire, where he was billeted with the spinster daughter of a non-conformist minister. John was educated at a Roman Catholic boarding school, but finally found his religious home in Anglicanism. At the age of seventeen he returned to London. During his City days as a junior executive, he became a Special Constable attached to Bow Street Police Station.

Having felt a calling since his early teens, the priesthood beckoned, and in 1966 he started training at theological college. As part of his pastoral training, John made regular visits to Ford Open Prison, and, as a curate in Eastbourne, trained as a voluntary probation officer. His final full-time ministerial post was as Chaplain and Director of Studies at the National Police Staff College, Bramshill, a training establishment for senior police officers.

During forty years of full-time ministry, John has served as a pastor and mentor to people from all walks of life, and was, for a time, Chaplain and Minor Canon of St George's Chapel, Windsor.

John is now retired and lives with his wife Mary in Nottingham.

THE DIVINE HEART OF DARKNESS

Finding God in the Shadows

• Catherine Bird

PAPERBACK (c.180 pages)

ISBN: 978-1-910519-58-5

November 2017 • RRP £11.99

Rights: worldwide, all languages

There is a universal assumption that associates darkness with fear and evil. Why is it that light has come to be exalted, venerated—worshipped even—whilst darkness has become demonised and feared? Catherine Bird explores how we can use the experience of darkness to lift our spirits, challenge our hearts and minds, and draw us closer into the heart of God.

Drawing on material not only from Biblical and religious studies, but also from anthropology, biology, sociology and the creative arts, The Divine Heart of Darkness offers a new way of understanding darkness with beautiful and life-affirming qualities—not reflecting a dichotomy of good and evil, but rather a balanced universe in which God’s nature is revealed in all things which are healing and affirming of life.

CATHERINE BIRD is Superintendent of the Methodist Church in the London Borough of Hackney, where, among many things, she co-ordinates the movement to have Hackney accredited as a “Borough of Sanctuary” as part of the national “City of Sanctuary” campaign. She regularly speaks at the Greenbelt festival, attracting large audiences.

Catherine was ordained as a Presbyterian in the Methodist Church in 1997, having previously worked in social policy and research in the voluntary sector. She served for 15 years as part of the World Methodist Council during which she Chaired its Committee for Social and International Affairs, and is an experienced Spiritual Director and leader of retreats, including in 2013 for Embrace (formerly Biblelands). Cathy is an experienced writer of liturgy and hymns, and her work has been used widely in various forms of worship and published in The Preacher (Journal of the College of Preachers), Magnet and the Methodist Recorder. She is currently the writer of study material for the story telling initiative “Applecourt”.

A Londoner to the core, she has worked in Tottenham, Kings Cross, and Marylebone (where she also served as part of the ecumenical Chaplaincy Team at the University of Westminster). She is an avid West Ham supporter and regularly presents in the new London Stadium. She also enjoys cooking, jazz music, film and theatre.

Forewords by Rowan Williams and Paul F. Bradshaw

STEPHEN PLATTEN is one of the foremost liturgists of our times, and was Chair of the Church of England Liturgical Commission from 2004 to 2014.

Born in London, he was educated at the Stationers' Company's School, after which he read theology at Cuddesdon College and then Trinity College, Oxford.

Platten was formerly the Archbishop of Canterbury's Secretary for Ecumenical Affairs, Dean of Norwich, Bishop of Wakefield, and Minister Provincial of the European Province of the Third Order of Saint Francis. He was admitted to the House of Lords in 2009. He has been Chairman of the Council of Hymns Ancient & Modern Ltd. since 2013.

"The breadth and depth of Stephen Platten's theological and liturgical interests are clearly displayed in this wide-ranging collection which deserves a wide readership."

THE REVD CANON DR SIMON JONES
Fellow & Chaplain, Merton College Oxford

Endorsed by the doyen of Anglican liturgy, Paul F. Bradshaw, and former Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams, this collection of essays is essential reading not only for students of liturgy and ordinands, but for anyone with even a passing interest in the background of the Church's ceremonies and rites.

Liturgy forms both individuals and the community in the faith and life of the Christian gospel. Animating Liturgy invites readers to consider the liturgical offering which stands at the heart of the Christian faith. It brings together essays by liturgist Stephen Platten which take readers in three main directions:

- the sacraments, their history and their celebration
- liturgical history, study and practice
- general theological, practical and ethical aspects of liturgy

The essays integrate our understanding and practice of the liturgy and in doing so offer insights to a broad range of readers.

Foreword by Frank Field MP

Cathedrals today face a paradox: on the one hand they represent one of the biggest success stories and mission opportunities of the present-day church; on the other they face seemingly insurmountable financial difficulties, and are largely left by the church and government to fend for themselves.

Many—both within and outside the church—argue that cathedrals are an irrelevance. But cathedrals are one area of the church's life where increasingly the unchurched and the half-believer encounter God, and where the institutions of our society instinctively engage with the Christian gospel. They are missionary in any number of ways.

Holy Ground digs deep into the life of England's cathedrals, and discusses such diverse topics as finance, growth, heritage, liturgy, development, music and art.

Endorsed by John Hall (Dean of Westminster) and Simon Jenkins (Author of England's Cathedrals)

STEPHEN PLATTEN, former member of the Cathedrals Fabric Commission for England (CFCE). PETER ATKINSON, Dean of Worcester, formerly canon of Chichester Cathedral, Principal of Chichester Theological College, and parish priest in south London, Surrey, Bath, and Sussex. NICHOLAS HENSHALL, Dean of Chelmsford, formerly parish priest in Newcastle and Harrogate, and Canon Precentor of Derby Cathedral; has worked for BBC local radio and writes regularly for The Tablet. DAVID HOYLE, Dean of Bristol, formerly canon of Gloucester Cathedral and Secretary to the Theological Group of the House of Bishops; published historian. CHRISTOPHER IRVINE, canon of Canterbury Cathedral, trustee of Art and Christianity Enquiry, and teaches Liturgical Studies; formerly the Principal of the College of the Resurrection, Mirfield. JANE KENNEDY, architect to Ely, Newcastle, and Christ Church (Oxford) cathedrals, and a senior partner at Purcell; currently leading a team transforming Auckland Castle in County Durham into a museum of faith. SIMON OLIVER, Van Mildert Professor of Divinity at Durham University and canon of Durham Cathedral, formerly on the faculty at Lampeter and Associate Professor in the University of Nottingham; specializes in systematic theology and philosophy. JENNIE PAGE, Vice Chair of the Church Buildings Council, formerly Vice Chair of CFCE and Chief Executive of English Heritage. RICHARD SHEPHARD, prolific composer of sacred music; formerly a member of Baroness Howe's Cathedrals Commission whose report formed the basis of the 1999 Cathedrals Measure, Director of the York Minster Trust, and Headmaster of the Minster School in York.

Living the Sayings of Jesus

• Ian Black

PAPERBACK (114 pages)

July 2017 • RRP £7.99

Rights: worldwide, all languages

The Bible is full of instructions for how we ought to behave if we want to be a follower of Jesus, but these often seem far removed from our busy twenty-first century lives. Follow Me uncovers how Jesus' words are still relevant, and distils the essence of the Gospel message for today, providing practical steps that all of us can take to live the sayings of Jesus.

Using true stories, Ian Black draws connections between what Jesus said and how we live today in all its messiness and complexity. Based on Jesus' words "follow me", he reflects on acts of loving service, the commandment to love, prayer, money, forgiveness, self-sacrifice, mission, and the Eucharist.

Each chapter ends with a series of questions for private or group reflection and a prayer.

The period covered by this book (AD 381–451) is the first in which the church can be said to have exercised a dominant role in political history. For some it is the period in which the church lost its innocence. Yet without the innovations of Constantine and his successors, it is hard for us to imagine what Christianity might have been. Without this time of consolidation and increasing conformity, Europe would not have existed as we now know it—nor, for that matter, would Islam.

This book is neither an apology nor a polemic, but the real history of real people who were trying to uphold eternal truths in a fallen and transitory world.

• Paula Clifford

PAPERBACK (238 pages)

Blake, Nostradamus, Christian fundamentalists, and latter-day prophets are just some of the many individuals and groups—both religious and secular—who have speculated about the end of the world.

In this thoroughly entertaining exploration of end-time ideas and beliefs, Dr Paula Clifford indulges her own fascination with the colourful array of characters and events, and artefacts associated with them. She reaches thoughtful and surprising conclusions in light of today's fears of environmental catastrophe and an ever-increasing knowledge of the origins and destiny of our universe.

• Graham Turner

PAPERBACK (218 pages)

Graham Turner confronts many of our comforting assumptions about the story of God's people. Taking us on a journey through scripture, he draws together familiar texts (and some unpopular passages) to demonstrate that the Old and New Testaments coalesce around two central themes: personal spirituality and social justice.

Following God's call to Abraham and Jesus' call to his disciples, we are called to a higher truth—the Kingdom of God—whose equality, peace and love seems foolish to the world, including, sadly, many Christians. It is, however, the path to freedom.

An intimate account of struggling with depression and breakdown as a Christian.

Many Christians who suffer from depression and mental breakdown struggle to rationalise it with their faith. In this honest and thoughtful book, Jon Grogan shares what helped him to understand and recover from depressive illness. This empathetic approach will help sufferers feel better understood, with an improved understanding of the issues they deal with on a daily basis, and a renewed sense of place within the church community.

From Over The Edge addresses the way in which different Christian spiritual traditions can be drawn upon to help sufferers and complement treatments that are likely to be on offer.

"Read it and be challenged" ~
Nick Baines, Bishop of Leeds

At a time when barbarous acts of terrorism are being committed globally and society ponders whether the perpetrators are legitimate religious adherents, Marcus Paul makes an unflinching and counter-cultural examination of some of the worst periods in the Church's history.

Were the crusades entirely inexcusable religious wars? Was the Inquisition the bloody and sadistic "Black Legend" of popular imagination? How can we understand the goodness of God after two brutalising world wars? In a refreshingly frank treatment of the Church's past failings, this book fills a gap in our understanding of what it is to be Christian in the twenty-first century.

CATHOLIC BISHOPS OF GREAT BRITAIN

Foreword by His Eminence
Cardinal Cormac Murphy-
O'Connor Archbishop
Emeritus of Westminster

CHRIS LARSEN was born in Croydon in 1977 and attended the John Fisher School, Purley before graduating from UWE, Bristol in 1999.

For a few years, he tried a vocation to the priesthood at the Royal English College of St Alban at Valladolid in Spain and it was during this time that an interest in the diocesan history of Great Britain and its various bishops began to emerge. Since then, he has maintained a record of episcopal appointments, which has now developed into a valuable reference resource.

This essential reference catalogues the biographical history and significant events of all Roman Catholic diocesan bishops who have been in office since the Restoration of the Catholic Hierarchy in England and Wales in 1850, and in Scotland since the Restoration in 1878. The work has developed over a number of years into a comprehensive reference guide to over 300 men, ordained in the episcopal order, who have given their life in service to the Church.

Drawing on a wide variety of sources, this book will appeal to all those interested in the general history and origins of the post-Restoration Roman Catholic dioceses in Great Britain, and be of particular use to diocesan archivists and yearbook editors. It presents the information as completely, concisely and consistently as possible.

As this book records the episcopal milestones of the last two hundred years, it also stands as a respectful testament to those bishops who have gone before us marked with the sign of faith, who continue to inspire and encourage their living successors in the Roman Catholic Church in Great Britain today.

- Description and brief history of each diocese, including coats of arms
- Biographical details of all former and current bishops
- Translations of the Letters Apostolic
- Contact details of all serving bishops
- Chronological listing of significant episcopal events
- Indexes of titular sees and cardinal titles

"Enlightening, thought provoking and honest, a bit like the North itself" – Kate Bottley (the "Gogglebox Vicar")

A must-have book for anyone seeking understand the challenges of proclaiming the Gospel in the North of England.

Does it make sense to talk of a gospel for a specific place when there is "one Lord, one faith, one baptism" (Ephesians 4:5)? Can we even consider the North of England as a distinct entity with its own particular identity?

This book brings together prominent practitioners and academics to answer these questions and explore what it means to proclaim the gospel in the North of England from many angles: housing estates to ancient cathedrals, Biblical reflection to street evangelism, history to economics.

Michael Sadgrove retired as Dean of Durham Cathedral in September 2015. Since arriving in Durham in 2003 he has preached many well-crafted sermons on a wide variety of topics, from the Iraq invasions to "digital lambs". This volume contains an edited collection of some of his finest and most thought-provoking sermons from his time in Durham.

"Michael's sermons are both beautiful and inspiring. They draw the reader face to face with God in surprising ways, always feeding the spiritual appetite—yet leaving me thirsty for more of what we have just tasted. They are beautifully crafted, and admirably concise. The use of English is impeccable and the scholarship profound." ~ from the Foreword by Justin Welby, Archbishop of Canterbury

Foreword by Rowan Williams

The Cappadocian fathers of the fourth century—Basil of Caesarea, Gregory of Nyssa and Gregory Nazianzen—produced thoughts on the Trinity, the creation, the incarnation, the holistic reading of scripture and the discipline of the soul which are playing a more seminal role in Christian theology today that at any time in the last four hundred years. Too often, however, their teachings are appropriated in a piecemeal manner, with no acknowledgement of their mutual interdependence.

In this comprehensive introduction to their writings, Patrick Whitworth enables the modern reader to share their understanding of the purpose and scope of theology.

A Study Guide for groups or individuals.

The King James Bible is a treasure-trove of idioms, clichés and phrases that have entered everyone's vocabulary—and yet few are aware of the Bible as their source.

This book, suitable for both individual and group use, contains fifteen short studies designed to provoke discussion and contemplation. Each study discusses the context and cultural climate in which the phrases were used, and reflects on their relevance in the modern world.

Engaging and thought provoking, this study guide will immerse the reader in scripture and quickly have you delving deeper into the Bible for further information.

65 well-known phrases that you didn't realise came from the King James Bible!

Taking a well-known phrase from each book of the King James Bible and exploring its origins and modern usage, Richard Noble gives a fascinating glimpse into this “inestimable treasure”, the first mainstream English translation of the scriptures, and still unequalled in linguistic beauty.

Whether your interest is purely linguistic, theological, or devotional, this book assumes no prior familiarity with the scriptures. By providing the context of each book and phrase it becomes a useful guidebook, bringing the Bible alive.

With 40 phrases in the first section and 25 in the second, it can even be used through the days of Lent and Advent.

Whatever happened to the Arab Spring?

Not long ago there was the dawn of a vision of peace and justice in the Middle East. Just a few years later that vision seems to have vanished and instead there has been a renewal of new threats of violence between certain Middle Eastern peoples, especially against Middle Eastern Christians. In this book, Mary Grey asks how the Holy Spirit is leading us to a new future, for all these people: Christians, Jews and Muslims. God's outpouring Spirit must be seen as the power of resistance to evil. Pentecost lifts up the renewed hope that ever promises new energy for justice and peace.

"Immensely helpful and refreshing" – ReSource magazine

Never was there a more important time for the church in the UK to reach out beyond itself to the wider community on its edge: an edge made up, in our pluralist society, of a plethora of different groups and communities.

This book is a study of Luke's New Testament writings from the point of view of reaching the Outsider: in Luke's day they included non-Jews, Samaritans, women, the poor, the ostracised, and pagans. The book looks at Jesus' mandate for ministry to the outsider, both in the record of the Gospel of St Luke and in the Acts of the Apostles.

It is an invaluable resource to a Church thinking about Mission today, and how to ground that Mission in scripture and give it fresh momentum.

"That the Church of England should have spent so much energy on two matters of relative unimportance is bad enough. That this should have happened during the sharpest economic downturn since the early 1930s, with its disproportionate consequences for the most disadvantaged, is nothing short of scandalous."

Kevin Carey's thorough exegesis and cutting commentary question the purpose and intent of the modern church. Examining the bible book by book, Carey demonstrates that the Church has betrayed its core message by failing to focus on the big issues of the bible and society and instead becoming myopic in its obsession with doctrinal minutiae.

Foreword by Martin Percy,
Dean of Christ Church, Oxford

At a time when economics, banking and commerce are never out of the headlines, Theonomics asks if theology is capable of informing, shaping and penetrating all aspects of life, and especially economic life. Theonomics argues for the recovery of the classic virtues of prudence, temperance, fortitude, justice and humility as animators of a lively and Godly economy.

Six key principles are offered to help those interested in integrating Christian ideas into the economic sphere: community, solidarity, justice, gift, service and subsidiarity.

Through a series of reflections written by practitioners, Theonomics offers encouragement and empirical evidence for the integration of theology and everyday economic activity.

Churches are increasingly exploring the potential of diaconal ministry to help them serve wider society in the contemporary context. However, the role of those ordained to be deacons is diverse, challenging and often controversial, both within and outside the Church.

This book explores how deacons within the Methodist Church have understood their own ministry and. It makes a significant contribution to the ecumenical debate on diaconal ministry. It offers much that will be of interest to all those seeking to reflect on, understand, engage in or work with those involved in this ministry in their own contexts.

Bring the Christmas narrative to life with this Parish Nativity Play. Kevin Carey's moving interpretation is suitable for all acting abilities, ages, and experience levels. It can be performed with props and costumes or simply read aloud.

By marrying the two Gospel accounts of the Incarnation, supplemented by the author's imagination, Carey's nativity play stays as close to the meaning as possible, and yet remains entertaining for both cast and audience alike!

Bring the Passion narrative alive with this Parish Passion Play suitable for production by anyone with little or no acting experience, and requiring minimal rehearsal and no props.

Ideally suited for use in a parish church, the play is based upon the chronology presented by Professor Colin J. Humphreys in his book "The Mystery of the Last Supper" (CUP, 2011).

The narrative is interspersed with (optional) sung passages.

"This is a bold, imaginative and fresh interpretation of the Gospels. It is a pleasure for me to recommend strongly this highly original and ground-breaking Passion Play." ~ Professor Sir Colin J. Humphreys

ST CUTHBERT'S CORPSE

A Life After Death

• David Willem

PAPERBACK (112 pages)

ISBN: 978-1-908381-15-6

July 2013 • RRP £8.99

Rights: worldwide, all languages

The miracle of St Cuthbert's incorrupt corpse has been the subject of much fascination since his death over thirteen-hundred years ago, inspiring pilgrims, monks, and even the construction of Durham Cathedral itself. Throughout the centuries, Cuthbert's coffin has been opened on six occasions. For the first time, accounts of these openings have been brought together in a single volume, providing a unique history of the Saint from his death to the present day.

Including details of his death and burial, the moment when monks first discovered his remains to be incorrupt, and the most recent exhumation of his relics in 1899, David Willem brings alive the mystery and intrigue of the life of Cuthbert's corpse, and tries to answer questions such as, "When did the corpse decay?" and, "Is Cuthbert still buried in Durham Cathedral?"

Foreword by David Rollason.
Includes maps, illustrations, and Turgot's Life of St Margaret.

This is the story of Prior Turgot—a man who, after many adventures in his youth, was shipwrecked while returning from Norway and transported to the realms of St Cuthbert—an unsung enabler who oversaw the construction of the great architectural masterpiece that is Durham Cathedral.

Turgot was close to the Scottish royal family, and wrote an account of the life of St Margaret. In 1104 he supervised the opening of the tomb of St Cuthbert, and arranged the transfer of the remains to a splendid shrine within the new cathedral.

Through reading Turgot's story, a great deal can be learnt about the building of Durham Cathedral, the story of St Cuthbert, and the earliest pre-Norman settlements which grew into an iconic city and World Heritage Site.

Learn Time Wisdom in an hour and get your life back!

Busyness has become a disease. The developed world is suffering from an epidemic of major proportions, and the disease at the heart of it is busyness. We are addicted to doing one thing after another with as little down-time as possible. This is a sickness, a spiritual sickness.

Following the success of his previous book, Beyond Busyness: Time Wisdom for Ministry, Dr Stephen Cherry has distilled the essence of Time Wisdom into this bite-sized book, essential for anyone seeking to restore some balance in their busy life.

As part of his "Give up busyness for Lent" campaign – or as a standalone guide – this concise e-book will help you get to grips with Time Wisdom in just an hour!

"A gift to any busy minister"

~ Dr Tim Ling

Beyond Busyness is a practical and effective step towards connecting up the limitations of time with the demands and realities of ministry. It helps ministers to take positive steps in developing a time wisdom which will help them navigate the very considerable pressures that many currently face.

"Give up Busyness for Lent" is a spin-off from this book. See www.notbusy.co.uk for details.

"Who says this is just for vicars and ministers? Beyond Busyness is a great book for anyone who feels too busy!"
~ Dr Margaret Masson

STEPHEN CHERRY is Dean of King's College, Cambridge. Formerly he was a Canon of Durham Cathedral and has extensive experience in parish ministry and college chaplaincy, having been Chaplain of King's College, Cambridge for five years and Rector of All Saints with Holy Trinity in Loughborough for twelve. His post at Durham combined cathedral ministry with the leadership of the Diocesan Resource Team, and he was also responsible for Continuing Ministerial Development.

Stephen is the best-selling author of the Archbishop of Canterbury's 2011 Lent book Barefoot Disciple and Healing Agony (both published by Continuum).

Stephen is a graduate of Durham and Cambridge Universities with degrees in Psychology and Theology. His PhD from King's College, London was a theological study of forgiveness which drew on psychology, ethics and literature.

Foreword by Michael Sadgrove

Can we have faith in the age of science? This is the question asked by media consultant and ex-vicar Mark Silversides, who tackles one of the most challenging questions of our day.

This book carefully examines the claims made by the followers and promoters of both atheism and religion in a rational and engaging way.

The late Rabbi Lionel Blue said, "It is an outstanding book, and a much needed one . . . Appreciating the great scientific advances of our time and their religious components, the book is user friendly, even to readers who are not trained scientists. I recommend it to my students and colleagues for reading, studying and underlining—my special accolade. I found it hard to put down."

Anyone who finds solace in the words of the Book of Common Prayer will welcome this companion to its Collects, Epistles, and Gospels.

This thought provoking commentary gives the words of Cranmer and his colleagues renewed meaning in our own time by providing historical context for their composition and reflection on their broader message. This book provides an excellent starting point for sermons or personal contemplation on the readings and prayers that comprise the liturgical year.

Accompanying each section are five Thoughts for Reflection, providing potential starting points for sermon writing, discussion, or personal reflection.

An examination of the place of rectories and vicarages in the history of the Church, and how they evolved through the centuries. It looks at their many and varied styles of architecture, profiles hundreds of individual houses, and highlights some of the most architecturally outstanding and interesting ones. One chapter delves into the oddities of the parsonage world, including tales of ghosts. There is a shortlist of what are considered England's finest parsonages and includes the author's own top ten favourites.

ANTHONY JENNINGS *read classics and philosophy at Trinity College, Oxford, before qualifying as a solicitor. As Senior Legal Adviser and Company Secretary at Texaco (later Chevron), he specialised in oil and gas and marine and shipping law. Blake, Nostradamus, Christian fundamentalists, and latter-day prophets are just some of the many individuals and groups—both religious and secular—who have speculated about the end of the world.

In this thoroughly entertaining exploration of end-time ideas and beliefs, Dr Paula Clifford indulges her own fascination with the colourful array of characters and events, and artefacts associated with them. She reaches thoughtful and surprising conclusions in light of today's fears of environmental catastrophe and an ever-increasing knowledge of the origins and destiny of our universe.

PROF. W. G. HALE graduated with a degree in Zoology from the University of Durham in 1959, followed by a PhD in 1962 and a DSc in 1985. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Biology, a Chartered Biologist, and an Honorary Fellow of Grey College, Durham. He has long experience of research having served on committees of the Natural Environment Research Council, the Council for National Academic Awards, and as a member of the Scientific Advisory Committee of the Wildfowl Trust. He has supervised and examined over fifty PhD candidates.

Hale has published widely in the fields of entomology and ornithology, and recently on antiquarian bird books. He is author of several books and is a past president of Liverpool Ornithologists' Club.

Henry Baker Tristram was a surprising and remarkable man: explorer, ornithologist, and priest. With his wild beard (for which he required special permission from his bishop) he undertook expeditions to the Sahara and Palestine at a time when doing so was even more fraught with danger than it is today. As a founding member of the British Ornithologists' Union (BOU), he contributed regularly to its journal, Ibis, as well as other scientific journals. Tristram's nickname in the BOU was "Sacred Ibis".

Tristram was a collector par excellence, acquiring extensive collections running to tens of thousands of specimens, primarily of birds, but also of plants, fish, mammals, insects, molluscs, geological samples and archaeological material. He was the first scientist to support Charles Darwin in print, and became a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1868 supported by his great friend Alfred Newton as well as Darwin.

This book follows Tristram's epic adventures and love for birds—from his boyhood on the moors of Northumberland to his time as a Residentiary Canon of Durham Cathedral—and the people that influenced him—from his dislike of Gladstone whom he met as a fresher in Oxford to the offer of the Bishopric of Jerusalem by Disraeli (which Tristram declined). In the book are over 80 colour plates and a reproduction of Darwin's first letter to Tristram.

As his granddaughter wrote, Tristram may not have been a great churchman, but he was a great ornithologist.

*"Read it and be challenged" ~
Nick Baines, Bishop of Leeds*

At a time when barbarous acts of terrorism are being committed globally and society ponders whether the perpetrators are legitimate religious adherents, Marcus Paul makes an unflinching and counter-cultural examination of some of the worst periods in the Church's history.

Were the crusades entirely inexcusable religious wars? Was the Inquisition the bloody and sadistic "Black Legend" of popular imagination? How can we understand the goodness of God after two brutalising world wars? In a refreshingly frank treatment of the Church's past failings, this book fills a gap in our understanding of what it is to be Christian in the twenty-first century.

Perfect as a GCSE or A-Level interest.

Nothing, no amount of training, could have prepared a small group of soldiers from the Durham Light Infantry for what they discovered on 18 April 1945, less than a month before the end of WWII in Europe.

Of the fifty-five million killed during the war, over ten per cent were murdered civilians. This book is about how the world came to hear about these murders in what later came to be called the Holocaust.

Through the words of those brave soldiers who made the ghastly discoveries, and the thoughts of the survivors of Bergen-Belsen Concentration Camp, we are told the story of the infantrymen who uncovered those monstrous crimes seventy years ago, and the traumatic effect it had on their lives.

A thrilling tale of spies, terrorists and blossoming young love set in the final months of peace before WWII.

Britain is under attack on two fronts. The IRA is mounting a bombing campaign on the mainland, and agents of the German Secret Service are collecting vital information to help them if war breaks out.

A young investigative journalist unearths a link between the IRA and Nazi Germany and, with the help of two teenage boys and Scotland Yard's Special Branch, uncovers two plots which threaten Britain's preparations for war.

Meanwhile, the Gestapo are blackmailing a young Jewish girl who has come to England through the Kinder Transport and is working in the service of a senior Foreign Office Diplomat. A daring operation is mounted to rescue her parents from under the noses of the Gestapo in Berlin.

DAVID LOWTHER was born in South West London and raised in South Wales. Having trained as a teacher, he worked in secondary schools and in tertiary education in the North of England until his retirement. In his early years he taught Physical Education, but later specialised in GCSE and A-Level History. After retirement he taught part-time at the University of Portsmouth before moving to Durham for several years, and now lives in Surrey with his wife.

In his earlier years, David was a keen sportsman, as both an athlete and playing rugby at club level. Aside from sport and history, his other great love is the cinema, and was onetime Chairman of the Tyneside Cinema Film Club, and a member of the British Film Institute. These passions are all reflected in the detail of his novels.

David is a regular fixture at the Durham Book Festival. His first novel, The Blue Pencil (p. 34), saw the light of day as a self-published Kindle e-book. It was noticed by Sacristy Press who published it in late 2012. David went on to pen three further books about World War Two. The first of these, Liberating Belsen (p. 27), is an introduction to the Durham Light Infantry and the harrowing role they played in liberating the Belsen concentration camp. This was an event that shocked the nation, and the subject has been handled with great sensitivity by David in his book. His second novel is entitled Two Families at War (p. 32), and is a fictionalised account of the skulduggery that went on between families during the Blitz.

The Gharsias hold a secret which means they can never be safe.

1530: Hernando Gharsia flees Spain with Luis, the traumatised grandson he is determined to raise within the traditions and faith of his ancestors. As he grows up, Luis must learn to navigate French and English society, politics and commerce with utmost discretion. In an historical saga spanning several tumultuous decades, the loyalty of friends is the only refuge from Europe's religious and political turmoil.

From the vineyards of south-west France to the bustling port of Bridgwater, England, the remarkable story of Luis Gharsia unfolds as one of love, betrayal, resilience, and sacrifice.

The Gharsias have guarded their secret closely, but has it secured their safety?

1547: the old kings of France and England are dead. In both kingdoms, uncertainty hovers over the question of religious reform. Discontent simmers in the countryside, ready to erupt, and the fragile peace between the two realms is about to disintegrate.

Luis Gharsia sets sail for England, determined to consolidate his burgeoning wine trade with Thomas Weaver and to rekindle his friendship with Weaver's intriguing daughter, Alyce.

As a Morisco, Luis can observe the religious changes with secret impartiality, but when those he cares about are threatened, he must act...

An embroidering tale of scheming courtiers and deadly plotting.

Stifled by his turbulent provincial family and repressive schooling, Philip Devalle yearns for the power and excitement of life at the court of King Charles II. Escaping to the pleasures and perils of Restoration London, he soon discovers that the glamour of courtly life is not all it seems.

The frivolous façade conceals a sinister reality of subterfuge and corruption. Philip finds himself plunged into a world where amorous alliances and dalliances are more than matched by lusts of a different kind—for power, for survival, for bloodshed.

As Philip rises to prominence and becomes increasingly involved in the machinations of political intrigue, he learns to negotiate a tangled web of potent loves and powerful friends.

His life as a dashing young courtier long since jettisoned by scandal and intrigue, Philip Devalle finds himself caught in a dangerous alliance with the scheming Earl of Shaftesbury. Lying broken and defeated in the infamous confines of the Bastille, Philip vows to make his enemies pay.

In his desire to hurt those who have hurt him he is in danger of losing sight of the person he once was. Can he ever be that person again? Older, wiser and disillusioned with everything for which he once yearned, Philip finds himself forced to confront the realities of conflict, death and defeat. But he must also withstand the most challenging confrontation of all—coming face to face with the man he has become, and the undeniable longings of the human heart.

The Paradise Tree is a beautiful devotional companion about the experience of God and giving expression to our inner spirituality.

A creative mixture of poetry, prose and scripture, this book will challenge preconceptions about the nature of God, heaven, hell, intercessory prayer, and the relevance of human existence within the vastness of an unfathomable universe.

JOHN DAVEY was born five years before the outbreak of WWII and his earliest memory is of being evacuated from London at the age of four to St Ives, Huntingdonshire, where he was billeted with the spinster daughter of a non-conformist minister. John was educated at a Roman Catholic boarding school, but finally found his religious home in Anglicanism. At the age of seventeen he returned to London. During his City days as a junior executive, he became a Special Constable attached to Bow Street Police Station.

Having felt a calling since his early teens, the priesthood beckoned, and in 1966 he started training at theological college. As part of his pastoral training, John made regular visits to Ford Open Prison, and, as a curate in Eastbourne, trained as a voluntary probation officer. His final full-time ministerial post was as Chaplain and Director of Studies at the National Police Staff College, Bramshill, a training establishment for senior police officers.

During forty years of full-time ministry, John has served as a pastor and mentor to people from all walks of life, and was, for a time, Chaplain and Minor Canon of St George's Chapel, Windsor.

John is now retired and lives with his wife Mary in Nottingham.

Hope in Dark Places explores the depths of depression through the poetry of David Grieve. You will be moved to tears and laugh unexpectedly. You will feel the raw reality of suffering and feel Christ's presence in its midst.

DAVID GRIEVE is an Anglican priest, married with three grown-up children, who retired in 1989 at the age of 37 due to a breakdown. He writes poetry as both therapy and vocation.

David currently volunteers as a chaplain at Durham Cathedral, and is married to Jane, who is also a priest. He has written poetry, and has published on many topics, including faith, health and vocation.

"In this collection David Grieve bravely offers fresh light on an age-old experience. These moving and perceptive poems will help those both inside and outside the darkness they so eloquently describe."

JOHN PRITCHARD
former Bishop of Oxford

"David expresses in these poems not only how the human mind can feel totally ravaged by depression, but also how such authentic creativity and spirituality can be born from the sufferer's despair. This poetry is brave and raw—it often makes for uncomfortable reading but is all the more important for this."

JON GROGAN
author of From Over the Edge

"In these brave poems, David, deeply conscious that he is a loved child of God, never flinches from, nor spares us from, the reality of the Depression that he lives with and in so doing he leads us all into a deeper awareness both of the experience of Depression and how, for him, Christ is found as a companion within it. These are poems to be taken slowly and lived with. They will be a real gift to many of us."

*Impassive,
I stand in the turmoil, my load laid down to watch the best and worst of humankind thronging the narrow street*

Good Friday is a deeply agonising, moving, and yet essential part of the Christian calendar. How can we process the events that took place on that dark day? Kevin Carey invites us to reflect on the Stations of the Cross with words that can be used for personal devotion or liturgically, and specially-commissioned images depicting each of the Stations.

Foreword by *Michael Sadgrove, Dean of Durham Cathedral

“Generations of painters have sought new pictorial songs to sing in depicting Durham and its great Cathedral. I was no different in this respect, until I became aware of the infinite variations endowed upon these historic structures by the ever-changing world they inhabit. This book contains some of my songs, but there are many more yet to sing.”

Award-winning artist Stuart Fisher is considered to be one of the most talented painters of architectural landscapes in Northern England. Mostly Durham contains 75 of his beautiful watercolour paintings and drawings from around the historic city of Durham and beyond.

Fisher was born in Nuneaton, Warwickshire in 1954 and grew up in Peterlee, County Durham, where he showed a prodigious artistic talent at an early age. A career in architecture spanning almost 34 years, routinely interrupting a love of painting, culminated in 2006 with his multi-award-winning design for the Science Learning Centre North East.

Stuart turned professional in 2010 and has regularly exhibited throughout the region, including several solo exhibitions in Durham Cathedral. Stuart was a shortlisted finalist in the prestigious Sunday Times Watercolour Competition in 2013 and 2016.
